Stan, you will always be remembered as my little brother. I know I always teased you about being adopted because you were always so much skinnier than the rest of us, but I loved you and would have fought anyone if they had tried to take you from us. I think we all have roles in our families and you happened to be the "caller" in our family. You were the one who always called to see how the rest of us were. We will all certainly miss that. You always amazed me at what a "natural" you were at being a daddy. You gave your all to your children and to your grandchildren and they adored you and called you their "hero". I loved it when you started attending the church in Pampa and you were getting ready to attend the men's retreat when you got sick. They took you under their wing and loved you. We shared our love of Jesus with each other and I wouldn't take for that. I know Alan was waiting to give you a great big hug when you arrived. I love you.

“ I have always thought of Stan as my little brother and will always think of him in that way. I guess we all have our roles in a family, and his role was "the caller". We could always depend on him to call to see how the rest of us were doing. We are going to miss those calls. Stan was an example of one of the most loving and giving "father" types I have ever known. He loved his children and his grandchildren above all areas of his life. I admired that quality in him. He was such a hard worker also. He also loved his Jesus. We had many talks about his love for the church he had found in Pampa that was showering him with God's love. He was looking forward to going on the Men's Retreat when he discovered he had the cancer. I was sad that he never got to go on that retreat, but he actually is on the best retreat of all now! He's with his son, Alan!
