“ Deborah will be missed by all who knew her and her sweet, sweet spirit. I was privileged to sit under her teaching for several years and I am thankful that we shared love and friendship. I am so thankful that Amy was able to speak of her mother with such love and grace. I am sure that Deborah was smiling down on her. Love to you all.##imported-begin##Brenda Webb##imported-end##

“ Danny, I am so sorry I was unable to attend Deborah's funeral. I feel that I know her after reading her blogs. What a wonderful person and such beautiful insights into the Bible. I wish she could have been my teacher. I know you can take comfort that she is with her Lord now but I know also how much you and all her family will miss her. God's comfort to you and your family. “ I want to express my heart felt love and appreciation for Deborah and her family. I "walked in the shoes" that Danny now walks in, two years ago. I remember wise words of comfort and encouragement in e-mails that Deborah wrote to me, during that time. I remember a conversation Amy and I had about how she had asked Deborah questions regarding "walking in those shoes", and the words of wisdom her mother gave her. Please know, during times of waves of emotions, I appreciated those words so much, and still cherish them in my heart. God's grace is wonderful, lean into it.##imported-begin##Marvena Swenson Williams##imported-end##

“ Hey Maude, please accept my apology for being on vacation during this trying time for all of you.

I am trying to get back in town for the memorial service, but I am writing in case I don't.

Growing up with, going to school, playing ball, and attending church over the years has been a great pleasure and blessing to me.

Thank all of you for this great experience, y'all are a loving bunch of folks, and I am so glad people like you guys have been apart of my life.

I know everyone is trying to comfort you guys, but y'all have the great comforter in your life's.

Y'all have been in my prayers ever since the start of these days, and shall continue to be.

May God Bless you, is the prayer of one who loves you.

“ My condolences goes out to the family, loved ones, and friends during this time. Deborah was a classmate whom I thought so much of and was such a sweet person and very caring to all she came in contact with. I feel so blessed to have known her and growing up while classmates in school together was my fondest memories of her - she could tear up a basketball court and was so outgoing and sincere. It has been an honor and blessing to have known her and we all can look forward to seeing her again when we go to heaven.

God Bless you all - you will be in my thoughts and prayers daily.

God has called a Saint home to be with him and we all can rest knowing she is in HIS ARMS....##imported-begin##MARTHA ANN (ROGERS) BAKER##imported-end##

“ Dearest Deb, there are no words to express the love and admiration I have had for you for all my life. Even though you were older, I often felt like it was my place to take up for you and protect you. I love the way you "Let" me do things for you and was honored to do each of them. I know you have seen the face of the One who died for you and you and Mama are probably talking things over and you're the happiest you've been in a long time. Enjoy the joys of heaven my dear sister!!! I'll see you very soon!!! I love you!!!
