“ FJ and I worked together for a couple of years at Accenture. We were also both Combat Engineers in the Army though we didn't know each other at the time. The motto of The Engineers is "Eassayons", which means "Let Us Try". To me this summed up FJ's attitude at work but also in life. He showed a lot of grace. I hope I can try to be more like him.

“ I'm glad I was able to help FJ scratch off something on his bucket list....being in the military he shot all kinds of weapons but never a shotgun...when i found this out I picked him up one day to fulfill his desire to shoot one...talk about a smile on one's face...the broadest I've ever seen...your a good man FJ it was a pleasure being your friend.

“ FJ as i remember him always had a smile on his face. Always ready to help anyone in need. He was always ready to sharing his wisdom and solving problems. Anytime i needed to learn how to do something new at work without hesitation I would reach out to FJ. He became my mentor and a friend. I always wondered how does FJ knows all the things, he was just exceptionally smart and intelligent. When i was preparing for a marathon and complained it was hard. He told me he ran a marathon in his army boots. I was like is there anything FJ that you have not done, he just smiled.
