“ Through 21 years of marriage I watched you give more of yourself to others than they will ever know. I can't remember a time you ever said "No" to someone in need, even when you were in pain of your own. I watched you hide the struggles that life brought you behind that beautiful smile and infectious laugh. Friend, stranger, rich, poor, old or young you deemed them all worthy of some kindness. They say to live in the hearts of those we leave behind is to live forever. In that case you shall live until the day I leave this world. Your struggle is over now, your pain is gone. Until our souls find one another again, may you rest in peace.

I will carry you in my heart forever
