“ I have known Aunt Gwen all of my life. She often at family reunions would pat the seat next to her and say she had saved it for me. She would tell me how pretty I was and be interested in my life. For someone who struggled with self esteem I would leave her encouraged. Not until I was much older did I know her as a prayer warrior! My grandson, Eli entered our world with a Spina Bifida diagnosis. She would have Nancy check with me for updated prayer request. I am eternally grateful for her prayers. I am sure in heaven she heard the words that Eli's life was changed because she prayed! Thanks Aunt Gwen!

“ My Grandmama and I have had so many memories we shared. I was lucky we lived so close because it gave me the chance to see her often. I learned a lot from her. From my own box of paper dolls, the fudge pops I wasn't supposed to have, the school bus rides and sick days too, my beloved tonsillectomy "Skunky" with her (Grandmama's) clip on earrings, all the singing on those rides and church services, all the family reunions and cooking, the admiration of seeing her reading her Bible and all the many, many car phone talks and sleep overs. My commutes won't be the same. Nothing will be the same and we will miss her so bad.

A few stories out of the many stand out right now. I could spend hours telling stories about her. I know where I get being long winded from- ha!

1 time Daddy & I went fishing with Grandmama and Granddaddy. Grandmama hollered at Daddy from their boat not to spank me when he snatched me up. She was sure he was about to get me when he advised there was a snake in the boat. But from a distance, my wiggle worm self had been warned to stop or we were gonna tip over the boat. I think she would have flown across the water to get him if he got me- ha ha! P.S. No one got harmed but the snake.

1 time I had to get gas when I was pregnant with Brice. I was on high risk bedrest just about my whole pregnancy and before I couldn't reach the pedal anymore because of my stomach, Grandmama met me at the gas station and pumped my gas because I couldn't be around the chemicals. She just wanted all her babies to be OK and would have done just about anything in her power to help.

We will see you again in Heaven Grandmama! Have a peaceful time and look after us like I know you always have and will. We love you!! We will see you again. Love, "Your Tabby Lou"

“ My earliest memory of my Aunt Gwen was when I was 7 or 8 years old. I had convinced my dad to let me go rabbit hunting with him in the woods behind where Uncle Carl and Aunt Gwen lived. It was a cold winter day when we headed out to the woods a little before daybreak. We probably did not go more than 50 feet with me following close behind my dad. Suddenly a branch from a small tree that he passed flew back striking me under my nose. It started to bleed profusely so Dad had no choice but to take me back to the house. Aunt Gwen was in the kitchen making breakfast and heard me crying. She ran out the door and grabbed me up yelling at my dad, "what happened to her?" Quickly when she saw it was my nose bleeding she put my head back applying a cold rag to the site. The whole time she was tending to me she was yelling at my Dad, "MORRIS, you need to be more careful! She is JUST a little girl. " Finally, after the bleeding stopped she told him to go back to the woods and LEAVE ME THERE! I NEVER asked to go rabbit hunting again. Nancy, I want to commend you for the loving care that you have given to your Mother as the primary caretaker all those years. Also, I send my condolences and sympathy to ALL six cousins and your spouses. She was an amazing wife, mother, grandmother, great grandmother and AUNT. With my love and prayers, & Condolences, Shirley Smith Cramer & Allen.
