“ Found out earlier today that we lost my daddy's brother, my uncle Harold last night. He was the oldest of three sons. All three boys joined the Navy and served their country. Harold watched over and cared for his brothers, as older siblings do in every family. He cared for his parents when they grew ill. He took care of his wife and his sons. And he also cared for his community by serving as a deputy sheriff for many years. I may not have been that close to him due to the distance between us, but I respected and loved him just the same. It must have been so hard for him to have been the last man standing...having buried his parents and both of his brothers. Like a reed in the wind he sometimes bent but was never broken. Today he is reunited with his family who had gone before him and shares our Lord's grace with them in Heaven.

“ Harold my friend, I will miss our talks so much. Marilyn was blessed to have you all these years as I was to be able to call you my friend. I'm sure you are stopping at the Rainbow Bridge to pick up Vanna, Sid and Marty. Then to our home in Heaven. I'll see you there.
