James H. Lockhart

James H. Lockhart of Atlanta, GA, died Monday, July 25, 2011. He is survived by his sons Robert S. Lockhart and William L. Lockhart. James was born in Atlanta and was a lifelong resident. He attended North Fulton High School and graduated from Georgia Tech in 1941 with a degree in Electrical Engineering. He served as a naval officer from 1941-1946 during WWII. He met and married his wife of 66 years, Dorothy Hamilton, during the war. After his discharge he resumed his career with Georgia Power Company until his retirement after 44 years of service. James was the true embodiment of a southern gentleman. Soft spoken, quick with a smile, deferential to others, but never afraid to step up and do the right thing for his family and friends regardless of the personal sacrifice. James always served his country, his community, and his family with honor. He will forever remain a shining beacon to his descendents. Funeral services will be held at 11 AM Friday, July 29, 2011 in the Snellville Chapel of Tim Stewart Funeral Home, with Rev. Norton Campbell officiating. “ It was my honor and pleasure to work for Jim, in the Distribution Department in the mid 1970's. Jim was the standard by which "gentleman" is defined. I always admired his golfing ability. I called Jim's golf game "Rainbird" because his drives, while not real long, were always right down the middle. It kind of lulled you to sleep as you played with him, but at the end, when you added up the scores, suprise, he usually had won.##imported-begin##Travis Johnson##imported-end##
