“ So very sorry to hear of Joe's passing. I went to high school with Joe. So many great memories of jamming together in our guitar class. Here is a picture of our guitar class from senior year. Joe was able to get his beloved "Piggy" in the picture too, hanging in the tree. Joe will be missed by many. rip

“ I can't believe you're gone Joe. I only knew you since you moved to Georgia. But I'm grateful for all of the time we did spend together as a family. Thank you for being you and James and I love you so much!

“ Amie,
I posted yesterday, but can't find it on here.
We are so sorry about Joe, and are still trying to wrap our heads around his passing. This is way too soon.
I know how much you two loved each other, and how you will cherish the time you had together. His passing will definitely leave a hole in our family, but like you, we have our memories.
He was the most gentle, quiet, unassuming guy ever, and we will truly miss him.
Please know Dew and I are here if you need us and we love you so much.
Rest in peace Joe.

“ I don't know how many times I had gone to Potions (the Vampire themed speakeasy in New Orleans) before I went with Joe, Amie, and Cynthia. I've been a regular since they opened. And each time, my company and I would stare at Shut the Box and wonder aloud how it was played. Nobody ever bothered to look, not until we went with Joe.

He Googled the rules of the game and explained it to the rest of us, and it was SO much fun! I've played it every time I've been back since and have already re-taught it to multiple people. I will remember him that way, as the man who quietly said, "Well that looks fun, let me just figure out how it's done and show everyone." He introduced me a whole new level of fun to one of my most sacred places TWICE because he is also how I found the volunteer divination panel and all the lovely friends I've made there. And now anytime I play Shut the Box, likely the very same box we used that night, and especially when I teach it to someone new, he will be fondly in my heart.

As a fellow D&D DM I had a wonderful time playing his spooky one-shot. He had exactly the kind of great, fun, indulging energy that makes a great storyteller.

I wish I had more time with him, had gotten to play more games with him, and that he had more time to share his curiosity with we who were lucky enough to know it. Our world has lost a vibrant and beautiful color.

Sending all my love and holding space for all those of us who are wishing for just one more game.

“ Amie, there are no words to express the sadness I feel for you and Joe's family. He was way too young, but I do believe you will see him again. Hold onto that thought. RIP Joe.

Amie,
I hope you know how much we loved Joe. He was a kind, gentle soul who has left us way too soon, and needless to say there will be a gigantic hole in our family from now on.
If you need us, Dew and I are always here for you and love you so very much.
