“ I Won't Forget You Uncle Juan

*The scent of fresh spices was in the kitchen air
It's aroma embraced me in my childhood years
For Uncle Juan's dad, Basil was an excellent cook by trade
Although he was from Portugal, New York is where he stayed
My granddad's tasty cooking and those I loved are gone
No, I won't forget our dear loved ones or you Uncle Juan
Uncle Juan was the youngest and the only boy, you see
And his older sisters Gloria and Rose, added up to three
Yet, many years passed and thoughts race through my mind
Thoughts of adventures with uncle Juan that I had left behind
It awakens memories of where Uncle lived, loved and cared
Yes, 28 Saratoga Road, is the home in which they shared
There were woods near their home that uncle Juan took us to Lady, their cocker spaniel would take the lead going through
My brother Lonnie and I would find interesting objects in the field
And Uncle Juan was Indiana Jones with a cutlass he would wield
Those woods I remember as our bonding place
Though I got poison ivy and sumac on my hands and face
Yes, Our Uncle Juan loved to share whatever he knew
For his love of life was contagious and from it I grew
However, his greatest treasure was his special gun collection
Second to his love for Aunt Hattie, who had his deepest affection
Yes, Uncle Juan had guns, rifles, pistols and even automatics
He would tell us all about them showing emotion and dramatics
He also had daggers, knives, bows, arrows and swords
When we hung out with Uncle Juan we were never bored
He displayed them in the showcase and in shelves on the wall
Let's not forget his huge train set, with horns, whistles and all
Yes, in their lovely home their basement was like a museum
With guns, books and a train, there you would find him with them
As a member of the Gun Club, we'd visit the shooting range
There he showed me with his gun and his rifle how to take aim
He also took me hunting to shoot pheasants while in flight
Then dogs retrieved the birds as we hung out through the night*

*Yes, the time with my Uncle Juan was simply pure enjoyment
And the Bible teach us, in paradise earth, I will once again join him!
I won't forget you Uncle Juan!!!*

“ My Uncle Juan was one of the loveliest people I have ever met, always full of love and positivity! He gave epic hugs and was very special to our family. Though we haven't seen him since he moved down to Georgia, he was always in our hearts. He will be missed and there is for sure an angel in heaven now watching over all those he loved.

*With greatest sympathy,
