“ BIG Mummy, as I fondly called you, little did I know that our last call (though in your hospital bed), was going to be the last. It's indeed, a privilege to be part of your final moments.

The void created by your passing is huge and will forever remain so as you meant and represented different personalities to different persons and left behind, good memories to all (family & friends alike)

Your life was that of LOVE, PEACE, CARE & THOUGHTFULNESS. You catered for all around you and exemplified Christ and His teachings in every practical sense.

Your transition maybe a hard pill us all to swallow, but we take comfort by the good and Godly life you lived.

“ I didn't have the pleasure of knowing Ms.Lovina personally but I have been blessed in experiencing a version of her through her daughter Julianna, what a blessing! I hope that during this time of grief what can be of solace to the family is the legacy that has been left behind, for truly Ms. Lovina's labor in the Lord has solidified God's goodness for generations to come.

Your Mum whom i knew far back in Lagos Nigeria over 40 years ago was such a wonderful woman. I knew the family of Anyalechi through my son Kayode who was a friend to Dr Ndubuisi when they were still in Nursery primary school. The two families became friends. Mum was loving, kind and supportive of her family. May her soul rest in peace. My family condole with Dr Ndubuisi and his family during this trying time. Please accept our condolences 🙏

“ Mom, your love was the melody of your voice, a source of joy and comfort. Your Baby boy deeply miss your laughter, your wise counsel, and the guidance you always gave me. You were my guiding star, pointing me towards the right path. I'm forever grateful for the lessons you taught me: kindness, resilience, and the importance of family. I'll cherish the memories of our shared laughter, our talks, and the countless ways you supported me throughout my life. Though my heart aches with your absence, I find solace in knowing your love lives on within me. I promise to honor your legacy. You'll always be my guiding light. Rest in peace, my dearest Mummy. “ Mama (as I fondly called her) will surely be missed. I met mama at church and I looked forward to seeing her after service every Sunday. Her smile, warmth and calm disposition was soothing. Though I met her recently, she shared enough love to leave a lasting impact. Her prayers, phone calls are appreciated and cherished memories. Mama, rest in peace. May her loved ones receive peace and comfort from the Lord and may her sweet memories be cherished as a reminder of the love she freely shared. 🙏🏻🙏🏻

“ I knew Mrs Lovina Anyalechi since the 90s from my days in secondary school with her son Dr Ndubuisi Anyalechi. She was a loving and God fearing mum whose presence exuded Christian values and discipline. She was soft spoken and hospitable to me whenever i visited my friend. She will be greatly missed but we take comfort in knowing she has gone home to a better place where their is no more pain and suffering. May her soul rest in peace with Jesus Christ in heaven until we meet again.

“ TRIBUTE TO MY FOREVER LOVE — MAMA
Nnem oma. Mama mu. My Strong Mama — as I fondly call you.
So this is true... this is reality. It's been a month now, and not a single prayer message, no WhatsApp calls, no check-ins. Mama mu, your daughter feels so alone. Death, you truly took a priceless gift from us.
Mama, I will miss you so dearly.
Your calm presence was always my anchor in life's storms. In your gentle eyes, I found peace. In your loving words, I drew strength.
You inspired me every single day — not only through your deep faith and tireless prayers, but in the quiet grace and dignity with which you lived your life.
Even when we were apart, your voice lingered in my heart — lifting me, reminding me of who I am and who I can become. And now, in those moments when I long to talk to someone, I still hear your voice: “Chinenyenwam, my baby, how are you? Don't worry... ihe niile ga di cha nma — everything will be alright.”
You were my greatest motivator, my safe space, and my forever blessing.
Thank you, Mama, for being my light. I will carry your love with me, always.

“ Mummy Day Care, as we fondly called you, your life was a blessing and we will treasure your memory as long as we live. You were a beacon of love and wisdom, always ready to go above and beyond for people. You looked after Ope so well that most of the time he refused to follow us home. You opened your home for Ope and his siblings saw it as their second home. Your stories of absolute confidence in God and His Word is worthy of note, even in the face of the challenges of life.

Your resilience and strength has been a challenge to us until this day. Mummy Day Care - your 'Ope mipo' and the whole family will really miss you.

However, we believe that you are resting in the bosom of Jesus, who you defended so well in your lifetime.

Rest on until the resurrection morning when we meet to part no more.

“ A Tribute to My Beloved Aunt—A Mother in Every Way

There are souls who enter our lives not by chance, but by divine assignment and my Aunt was one of them. To call her “aunt” feels somehow insufficient; she was a true pillar, an enigma of hope and a second mother whose love knew no bounds.

Even in the fragile moments on her hospital bed, she remained remarkably resilient. Each time we spoke, she would reassure me with unwavering certainty that she would recover. Her voice, though tired, carried the fierce optimism of someone who refused to be defined by her illness. That alone speaks volumes of her character. But perhaps what left the most indelible mark was her solid devotion to peace. I remember how she would speak with conviction about its necessity, urging calm and unity wherever discord lingered. And in the most poetic and bittersweet way, it was in her passing that her words took root—her death, sudden as it was, became the thread that stitched our extended family back together. Relatives who hadn’t spoken in years found themselves reunited, mourning together, healing together. It’s as though she gifted us peace one final time.

And oh, how I’ll miss her monthly WhatsApp messages, those warm, spirit-lifting new month prayers she sent unfailingly at the dawn of every month. They were more than words; they were blessings wrapped in grace, touching my life with the reassurance that she was always thinking of me.

Her absence is a silence that echoes, yet her legacy speaks louder than ever. In my heart, she remains a constant, a light, a mother figure whose love I carry forward.
