“ Dear Ones -

I'm sorry she's gone. Auntie was always gentle, honest and accepting. She was a very pretty, feminine lady who was simply herself and really sincere about her faith in Jesus Christ.

As I was coming home this evening, the heavy bronze Solari bell on my front porch gonged once as I walked up the steps. There was no wind.

I looked around to see if something had flown through the air or dropped down from the sky, or bumped against it.

Nothing; nothing but a peaceful, happy presence so real I kept straining to see it. I thought, "for whom the bell tolls..." and wondered if someone had died. Then, I remembered her.

It felt like she swept through to sing out a last "good-bye."

She will stay in my heart. May the memories of her love bring you comfort, strength and joy all the days of your lives.

“ You are in my thoughts and prayers.

May the Lord carry you and your families on angels wings and fill you with sustaining comfort in the days ahead. You are loved.
