“ Ron and I worked at Digital Transmission Systems and had several funny experiences together; but one of the best was one night after work, we stopped at Hotel lounge to have a beer and relax before going to our different homes. The service was very slow and we were being ignored, so we came up with a plan. We were both dressed up in business attire, so we decided to act like we were there to review the service for the hotel headquarters. Ron got out a leather pad and we started looking around and writing things down. Soon a waitress came over and wondered what we were doing, and we just said we were observing the service and asked her not to tell anyone. So she took our order right away and we saw her talking to a guy that looked like he was in charge. We got our order right away and the service to everyone became very prompt and they got their orders promptly and with the upmost courtesy and friendly smiles.

Yes, we were treated great. Ron and I had a big kick out of our effort, and I bet that the service at that Marriott Lounge was great after that.

Ron and I have many funny stories together, I really miss him.

Ron you are my best friend Forever.
