“ I just learned of Sonya's passing. I met Sonya at church when we were 8 years old. Her father was the Pastor of our church. We became very good friends. She moved when we were in junior high and sadly, we didn't stay in touch, I really don't know why. About 10 years ago we found each other on Facebook. We talked and talked, like we had never been apart. My heart is desperately sad right now and I will spend a lot of time in prayer, for healing and peace for her family and all of her loved ones. She was everything good in this world, she always was. I love you Sonya. RIP my friend, one day we will be reunited, I have no worries about that. Until we meet again my sweet friend💕💕

“ I met Sonya several years ago on an online forum when our family was preparing to go to Atlanta to pick up children to host from Ukraine. When she found out our flight was late in the evening she insisted we stay with her to prevent us from driving home so late. I'm so glad I had the opportunity to meet Sonya in person along with her wonderful family. I was amazed at how quickly she made us feel right at home, filling our bellies with delicious food and sharing stories and jokes that still make me smile and laugh. It was so easy to share burdens with Sonya. I could talk to her about anything. We continued to stay in touch online. If she met someone in need, she would ask if I knew any resources. Always looking for opportunities to help others, she was a precious servant of the Lord. Sonya was the most genuine, transparent and caring person I have ever met. We had so much in common: our love for the Lord, our love for our families, our love for the weak and vulnerable. I am so extremely saddened to lose her presence on earth yet so heartened to know the legacy she left behind. Even in the midst of her severe trial with illness, I saw her family surrounding her with worship, scriptures and prayers. It reassured me that the heart that Sonya had for her Lord and Savior while on earth will continue to be carried forward in those she loved the most. Much love and prayers for you all, Donna Mauney
