“ Just sitting here thinking about you. Miss you so much. If you could only see how big that grandboy, Isaac is now. He sure misses his Granny but is comforted knowing where you are. Actually, when I have sad days he is sure to remind me. I love you! Until we meet again...

“ Mama,

I miss you so much. By the grace of God I am moving forward. Sometimes it is just too hard to ignore the empty space in my heart and that is when tears start flowing. I know you suffered greatly, but I still have the selfish desires to have you here with me. If only things were different for you. I wanted you to enjoy your life to the fullest and I know you tried. I know there are many things about God's plan for you that I don't understand but you taught me to trust Him because He has a Greater plan than ours. I pray that you are enjoying morning walks with Jesus, fishing with Granny Stevens and eating those Tomato sandwiches from Granddaddy Greasons garden and those apple pies Granny Greason used to make you that you were so fond of. I know you loved and missed each one of them. Praise God that you are now reunited once again. I bet the smells, sounds, sights and textures of everything is a lot to take in and more beautiful than one could imagine. I miss your laughter and your wit. You were so young to me. Too young to die. I still cannot believe you are gone. I am trying very hard to be a good mom and wife. You always had sound advice and gave me a safe place. I will forever love you, mama. I miss our friendship. My heart hurts and I am not sure it will ever go away. One day I will see you again and because of Jesus you will be healthy, happy and whole the next time we meet. I suppose God didn't like the Thelma and Louise plan we discussed often. We always had the wildest of ideas and could find trouble even when we weren't looking for it. You and I didn't always see eye to eye but you dare not let anyone mess with me...mama bear would show her teeth while growling and come out swinging if need be. You were such a pillar of strength for so long. I just wished you had known and felt the love everyone has expressed. It had always been difficult for you to express your feelings but I know that in the house of the Lord there is no sadness, shame, sickness or suffering. You are experiencing the essence of pure love and joy. Only our Father in Heaven can give you that. May your soul now be at peace. Love you & miss you so much! Always your favorite... 😊😭

“Okay Mama! It's been two months and I am still waiting on this whole "it will get easier" stage to come. I miss you terribly and often wonder how I will be able do this life without you. I know you were tired of being poked and prodded and going to doctors but I seriously had no clue that your death was anywhere that close. I wish I could have had some idea that you were leaving this world when you did. I know you know how much I loved you, but I would have stayed home the night before and spent those last hours with you. I would have loved on you and shared my heart with you until the wee hours of the morning. I pray you weren't afraid or in pain when I found you. I pray that you knew we were there trying our very best to care for you as we waited on the paramedics to arrive. I pray we did enough. I know none of my concerns, what if's or worries will bring you back. I know you are now home with Jesus and I wouldn't wish for you to come back to me after seeing the face of Jesus. That would be selfish and cruel. There is comfort knowing you are finally healed. I have been so blessed to have been able to spend the last of your years with you. Our relationship became so strong and we had each others backs. You were my very best friend and confidante. We were the real life versions of Thelma and Louise. I could tell you anything and never feared judgement. Even though I drove you crazy at times, I knew you understood "my crazy" unlike most prople and knew just what to do to lift me up. It's just not the same without you here. I love you and pray that I can be as strong of a woman as you. You had amazing strength and abundant faith. I saw so much in you that even you didn't see about yourself. You were worth a lot more to people than you believed. Thank you for everything, Mama. I am forever grateful for the many things you sacrificed and the lessons that I learned from you along the way. Until we meet again, mama...
