“ I loved him very much. I first met this special man 52 years ago, shortly before I came into the Childers family. He teased me a lot, and I liked that because it made me feel like he loved me too. Lamar would often go on hunting trips to Albany, Ga. Clarence and Lamar's uncle Fred together would tease me that Lamar was really going to visit his "other family" that he had in South Georgia. He was such a "monkey" and I enjoyed being around him. I got to tell him "goodbye" the day before he passed away. I gave him a kiss, told him I loved him; then, he said he loved me too. When I said he was going to see Jesus, he said he knew that he would see Him soon. Heaven will be even sweeter now that Clarence is there.
