“ Wes was the type of person you wanted on your team. Immediately after hurricane Idalia ripped through Florida in 2023 Wes asked me if I could drive down south just over the state line to check on his parents cabin. They had received word from neighbors that a tree had damaged the roof. When we arrived to that community the destruction was unimaginable . I think there were over 50 trees down alone on the 1 lane country road leading to their cabin. Noone in the area had electricity. It seemed impossible to reach our destination. But Wes told his Mom he would take care of it and that is what he was gonna do. We pulled up to the first tree and Wes pulled out his chainsaw and started clearing the road. More and more neighbors joined in and 18 hours later we finally reached the cabin. If Wes said he would do it, then he did it. Especially when it involved his close friends and family. We love you Big Fella. You will truly be missed.

“ Wes was a great guy--someone you could be proud to call a friend. He would do anything he could to help you. One time when I had fed my dog something that did not set well with him. Wes came to help me find an emergency after hours vet finding one that could see my dog immediately while I had been waiting at another who couldn't see us right that moment. Wes paid the advance fees for my precious one to be seen and kept in emergency care for 24 hours until he was better. He never asked for the money back remaining patient until I repaid him several months later. He had a huge heart like that. He will be missed greatly by myself and many others.

“ Wes was a grade school friend of mine that was also friends with my husband before my husband and I met. After Cj (my husband) and I got together, Wes took Cj and I on our first trip together to New Orleans.

“It’s cold in here” (in a real country accent) 😊 something we used to say to each other (inside joke). It originated from a memory we all shared from that New Orleans trip back in 2007. Man we have had some great times together. ❤️

Wes was always so kind and generous. It really hurts that the good ones go so soon.

We will miss Wes and cherish his memory.

Wes was an unexpected friendship for me. I met him almost 10 years ago and have alot of great memories with him. He always made me laugh, like the kinda laughter that makes your stomach hurt. He was always generous and kind and very hard headed. I'm gonna miss my good friend. He was taken way to soon. Love you Big Fella. ALEX

“ Wesley was a great nephew. I remember him playing baseball when he was younger. He could really pitch and throw a baseball. He was taken way too soon. May God bless him and his family in their time of sorrow. We love yall.
